

Southeast Asia Climate and Health Responder Course

Ronald Law, MD MPH

Dr. Ronald “Ron” Law is the Chief of Preparedness of the Department of Health’s emergency bureau. He oversees Disaster Risk Reduction and Management in health or DRRM-H policies, plans, programs, training, and advocacy to contribute to health system resilience and champions Philippine good practices on the same at the global level. As a professor of public health, academic, and scholar specializing in health emergencies who was awarded fellowships and received training from various parts of the world, he had mentored several students local and international, lectured widely on a range of topics and published articles and contributed to book chapters on health emergencies and disasters. He is also a staunch advocate of environmental and planetary health.